Preamble to the Constitution ... of The American Legion

*F*OR God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our associations in the Great Wars; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.

PERRY BROWN

National Commander

The American Legion

FOR the second time in 23 years The American Legion is meeting in national convention in Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love.

The American Legion has come a long way since it first assembled here in 1926. Its membership then was 688,412 in some 11,000 posts.

In 1926 we had only one World War behind us. We had only 4,000,000 veterans to serve. Today we have two World Wars behind us. We have almost 19,000,000 veterans and their families to serve.

In one respect The American Legion has not changed. Its primary concern still is the welfare of our disabled comrades and their loved ones and the care of the widows, orphans and dependent parents of those who gave their all in the service of God and Country.

While we have remained devoted to our ideal of rehabilitation service, we must raise our sights because our horizon of service in this field has been immeasurably widened. We cannot hope to discharge adequately our 1949 obligations with 1919 or 1926 standards.

Your foremost task as delegates to this convention is to gear The American Legion to meet its expanded responsibilities. There has never before been a convention of our organization which has had to weigh so many demands upon The American Legion for so much more service in rehabilitation, in Americanism, in national security and in child welfare as this year. All of our programs continue to grow as our potential of service grows with our two-war membership. You must be the builders of the machinery and tools with which The American Legion must work.

We have grown far beyond the most cherished dreams of the founders of our organization. We have had that growth because The American Legion was built around great ideals and we have always shaped our organization to those ideals. We must never shape ideals to fit our organization.

We have had a stirring year. We have had hard fighting on many major fronts. I am glad to report The American Legion has moved ahead. We have no lost ground to regain. The credit belongs all to you. I am deeply grateful for your unswerving support. I shall lay down my gavel as national commander here in Philadelphia. I pledge to you that I shall not take off my harness as a working Legionnaire. I shall always be at your command to serve The American Legion in any capacity that you may ask me.

A new chapter in American Legion history will be written at this convention. The leadership of our organization will pass here into younger and more vigorous hands. My prayer is that this new chapter in the life of The American Legion will start with the greatest program of high service to God and Country, to community, state and nation, to disabled veterans, war widows, orphans and dependents, that any convention has ever laid down.

Dear Judge Carroll:

It is a distinct honor to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the City of Philadelphia to act as host to the Thirty-First Annual National Convention of the American Legion, and it gives me great pleasure to extend my personal greetings and the greetings of every Pennsylvanian to the members of your organization.

To all of us who know the great ideals for which the American Legion stands, a Legionnaire and a good American are synonymous terms.

You have known the horrors of war and you know the blessings of peace. It is my earnest wish that we all go forward hand in hand to overthrow the subversive elements who would embroil us in another war. We must all work to make peace permanent.

With all best wishes for a successful Convention, I am

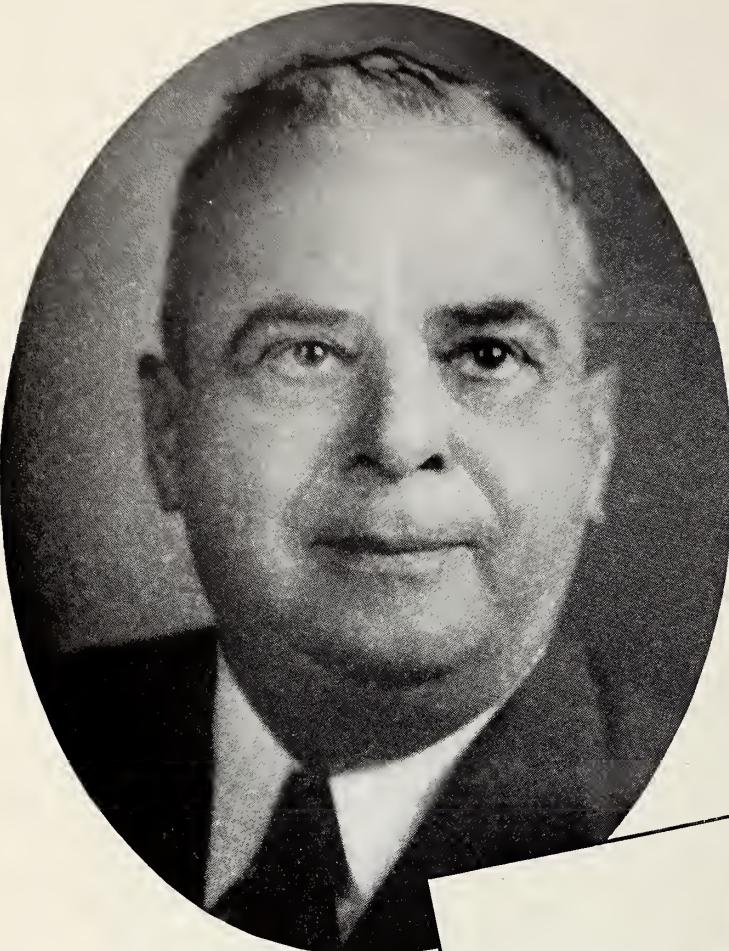

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Perry Brown
National Commander
The American Legion
Indianapolis, Indiana

Dear Commander Brown:

It is with great pleasure that I extend a welcome to all who will attend the 31st National Convention of the American Legion to be held in our City next month.

Americans to the Legionnaires the debt they owe to the world can never repay to the ideals of liberty which first saw the light of day in our city in 1776.

Philadelphia is a patriotic, progressive, forward-looking and historic city which has every facility for entertaining conventions and making those who attend them comfortable while affording all possible diversion between sessions. The hospitality of Philadelphia is as famed as its suburban surroundings, which are said to be the most beautiful in the world. Its theatres and sports attractions, its educational, art and scientific institutions and museums afford every means of relaxation and entertainment. The Franklin Institute is a unique museum, which with its Planetarium, Fairmount Park, the largest Art Museum and the Rodin Museum are outstanding. Long drives amidst woodlands and streams.

In Philadelphia occurred the birth throes of the Nation of democracy in the Declaration of Independence which gave the world new concepts of the United States. We are proud to possess the Liberty Bell and Christ Church with the pew in which Washington worshipped, the Betsy Ross Flag House, Carpenters' Hall and other National shrines.

A warm welcome awaits all who will attend the Legion Convention in the City of Brotherly Love where all will be done to make your gathering a success and your annual conclave a memorable one.

Sincerely yours,

Bernard Samuel

IN the summer of 1776 a little group of resolute men converged on the great colonial city that had been founded by William Penn, the City of Philadelphia.

The purpose of the assembly was to write a ringing Declaration of Independence from the tyranny of the King.

"And for the support of this Declaration," they said, "with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor."

A new Nation was born: The United States of America. And its birthplace became hallowed ground.

In the summer of 1787 many of those same men assembled here again. Law was their objective. This would be a Nation governed by law, not by the tyranny of man. And they drew on the strength of this hallowed ground to write what has been called "the greatest single document ever struck off by the hand of man."

"We the people of the United States," they wrote, "in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

Again in 1861, as the trial of the Union impended, Abraham Lincoln came here to draw strength from this shrine to the Nation's founders.

Down through the years our citizens and leaders have gathered here to accomplish great deeds and speak great words.

What could be more fitting then, that The American Legion in 1926 should have selected Philadelphia as their first Eastern convention city? Against this background of historical conflict for freedom and human dignity, The American Legion was keeping a rendezvous which had been unconsciously arranged by its principles and purpose.

And again—after World War II—it is proper that the Legion return to this city, to savor again its tradition and to refresh itself at the fountain of liberty.

As a life-long Philadelphian and as a founder-member of The American Legion, I am doubly delighted at the return of the Legion to this city. If my interest in, and affection for, Philadelphia is seriously challenged by any other loyalty, that is The American Legion. I have devoted a great deal of time to Legion activities over the years, and in no other endeavor have I taken greater pleasure. The bringing together of Philadelphia and the Legion pleases me, therefore, for many reasons but the greatest of all is the knowledge that each will draw much from this union. The American traditions which are rooted here will remind the Legion of its pledge to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy. And from the men and women assembled here, Philadelphia will draw greatness as it has always drawn it from visitors of good will and high purpose.

In describing Philadelphia to you, I shall describe it as I know it, as I feel it, and as I hope it will always be.

To America, Philadelphia is almost a holy city, a stately old city of tradition and flavor that carries comfortably and modestly its distinction of being birthplace of our nation. Yet in the sense of time and space, there are two cities of Philadelphia, two cities which have merged without self-consciousness into a great municipality. These are the old city of Penn and Franklin, of Independence Square and its Liberty Bell, of its charming old streets and buildings which still glisten with the glory of its past. The other Philadelphia is the ever-expanding and dynamic city which shares its location with its historical counterpart, and which had achieved the paradox of combining tradition and texture.

Because of its peculiar position in the history of our nation and in the hearts of our people, and because it insists on integrating this background into the flow of its Twentieth Century life, Philadelphia is a difficult city to describe. You visitors will find it full of almost unbelievable contradictions. It is a city of old and new, worldly in some respects and like a small community in others; its veins throb with rail and marine traffic yet in the middle of its vast downtown park system a pastoral quiet prevails which is almost incredible for a modern American city. But above all else, Philadelphia is a monument to civilization and the dignity of man.

Where too often today cities tend to measure their achievements and growth in terms of tons of concrete and steel piled into skyscrapers, Philadelphia still keeps its eye on the inflexible yardstick of cultural attainment. It builds people, not buildings.

Philadelphia was the cultural center for science, philosophy and literature as far back as the Eighteenth Century, and it has never relinquished that distinction. In Philadelphia in 1789 there was the first performance of a Shakespearean play in America. In 1741, Andrew Bradford put out the American Magazine, the first periodical of its kind on the continent. In 1784, Philadelphia was the home of the first daily newspaper, and it was here that Benjamin Franklin organized the American Philosophical Society with such brilliant associates as David Rittenhouse, the astronomer, and Thomas Godfrey, the inventor.

In no city in America is music as important to its people as in Philadelphia. The roots of this musical taste were watered by the early Welsh and German settlers, and today music is as earnestly supported by Philadelphians as other cities support their municipal services. There is in Philadelphia the best school of music in the country—the Curtis Institute—and what has been called the most majestic opera house—the Academy of Music.

The home of the world-famous Philadelphia Orchestra, the Academy of Music is a truthful symbol of Philadelphia itself; it brings together usefulness in the form of incomparable acoustics with a stately Victorian dignity. A writer once declared that not only do singers sing better and actors act better, when they tread the boards great predecessors have trod, but that their audiences also are better, for the ghosts of history watch in the darkness and affect their performances without their knowing it. If this is true, it helps explain the mood which touches the Academy of Music on Friday afternoon and Saturday nights in the concert season.

But there are other things which have caused Philadelphia to be thought of as Paris is remembered by many, and which have enabled this city to hold its artistic and intellectual level more than a century after it was passed as the most populous city in 1830. Philadelphia is an artists' city, with many fine art schools and a long tradition of painting. The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts is one of the finest in North America, while clustered around the Benjamin Franklin Parkway visitors will find the Rodin Museum, the Academy of Natural Sciences, the Free Library of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, and the Franklin Memorial, which contains the finest scientific collection in the world as well as the famous Fels Planetarium. On the west bank of the Schuylkill River is the first zoological park ever established in this country, and on the east bank is located the Aquarium.

The Indian names which still cling to certain regions of the city hold a distinctly Philadelphia flavor, and lend a character of timelessness which few other large cities enjoy. Passyunk, "a level place"; Moyamensing, "a place of meeting"; Tacony, "wood"; Shackamaxon, "a place of eels"; Pennypack, "deep, dead water"; Wingohocking, "land in a valley"—all are used casually in daily conversation. In a like manner, the botanical names given to the streets by William Penn—Walnut, Chestnut, Spruce, Pine, Cherry, Vine, Mulberry, and Poplar, to name a few—have been retained with a determined enthusiasm by passing generations of Philadelphians, and I predict they will remain unchanged as long as there is a city on this spot.

Philadelphia does not regard its cultural institutions as anachronistic and useless relics of a bygone era, which have been swept aside by the restless rush of time. To the contrary, cultural life thrives as actively today as it did in Franklin's time and it means as much in the life of the people.

But a city cannot grow on a diet of culture alone, and it cannot survive long on the richness of its past. Productivity and skill of its citizenry are modern essentials of a dynamic city. The industrial skills of this city can be matched nowhere outside of this region, and as the industrial processes of the nation are sharpened by technological advances, the industry of Philadelphia has set the pace. In the recent war, where for the first time the assembly line became a battlefield, the economic convulsion which wracked many industrial towns unable to cope with the gigantic problem of conversion scarcely shook Philadelphia. War conversion was taken in stride, just as a few years later the city's industrial life adjusted itself to the convulsion of reconversion.

It has been said that Philadelphia makes a little bit of everything and a lot of a great many things, and I will not try to enumerate her many products. But in the general area marked by the confluence of the two rivers are made a large part of the world's textile and steel products—products whose labels and brand names are familiar throughout the civilized world. Behind each product is a skill, and the diverse industrial knowledge which this city contains has only recently been proven to be one of our greatest national assets and safeguards.

There is another special significance in this city being host to The American Legion, and this significance is also tied directly to both her past and present character. William Penn was a man of tremendous tolerance, and encouraged by his attitude men seeking tolerance began to pour to this city from all over northern Europe and the British Isles. Even from Maryland, from New York and from New England, free thinking and tolerant men began to move to Philadelphia to establish their homes and their lives. If this gave Philadelphia a heterogeneous character, as some have written, that has certainly been mellowed into homogeneity today and the theme of this new homogeneity is tolerance, mutual forbearance, and respect for our fellow man. After having just emerged from one of the most terrible wars in the history of mankind, which was provoked by criminal disregard for the fundamental rights of the human being, The American Legion knows well that liberty and tolerance create an element for which there is no substitute. For that reason, I know The American Legion will feel comfortable and at home in Philadelphia.

There is no need to list Philadelphia's municipal achievements, nor to describe the advances that have been made in her housing, her highways, her public health, and her educational services and institutions. These things are there because Philadelphia is an expanding city and they were required by her growth. My wish here is to impart the genial mood and spirit of this city, and that cannot be done by cataloguing its physical assets.

Philadelphia is everybody's home town. Independence Square, undoubtedly the most hallowed ground known to Americans, belongs to our visitors as well as to those who live in Philadelphia. Congress Hall, where our Congress met in its earliest infancy, Carpenters' Hall, the Betsy Ross house, the meeting house of the American Philosophical Society "where all those with an interest in discourse and learning might meet to the mutual pleasure and enlightenment of all"—these we are willing and eager to share with our fellow Americans. They are symbols of a way of life which this organization has done much in the past, and is willing to do again in the future, to protect.

"I lived in Milwaukee—and I ought to know

Blatz is Milwaukee's Finest Beer"

"In Milwaukee," Charles Winninger says, "almost everyone is a star when it comes to judging good beer.
So when I tell you that Blatz is Milwaukee's finest beer, you can take my word for it.
I lived in Milwaukee—
and I ought to know."

A skeet-shooting champion and avid sportsman, Mr. Winninger proudly displays his trophies at his San Fernando Valley ranchhouse. "And out in the refrigerator," he'll tell you, "there's always Blatz. So help yourself to Milwaukee's finest beer."

A TOAST TO THE American Legion

Here's to you—for cherishing the American way of life . . .

Here's to you—for seeing clearly the blessings and opportunities of our democracy . . . where all of us may live, work, play, study, vote, worship and speak our minds as free men and women . . .

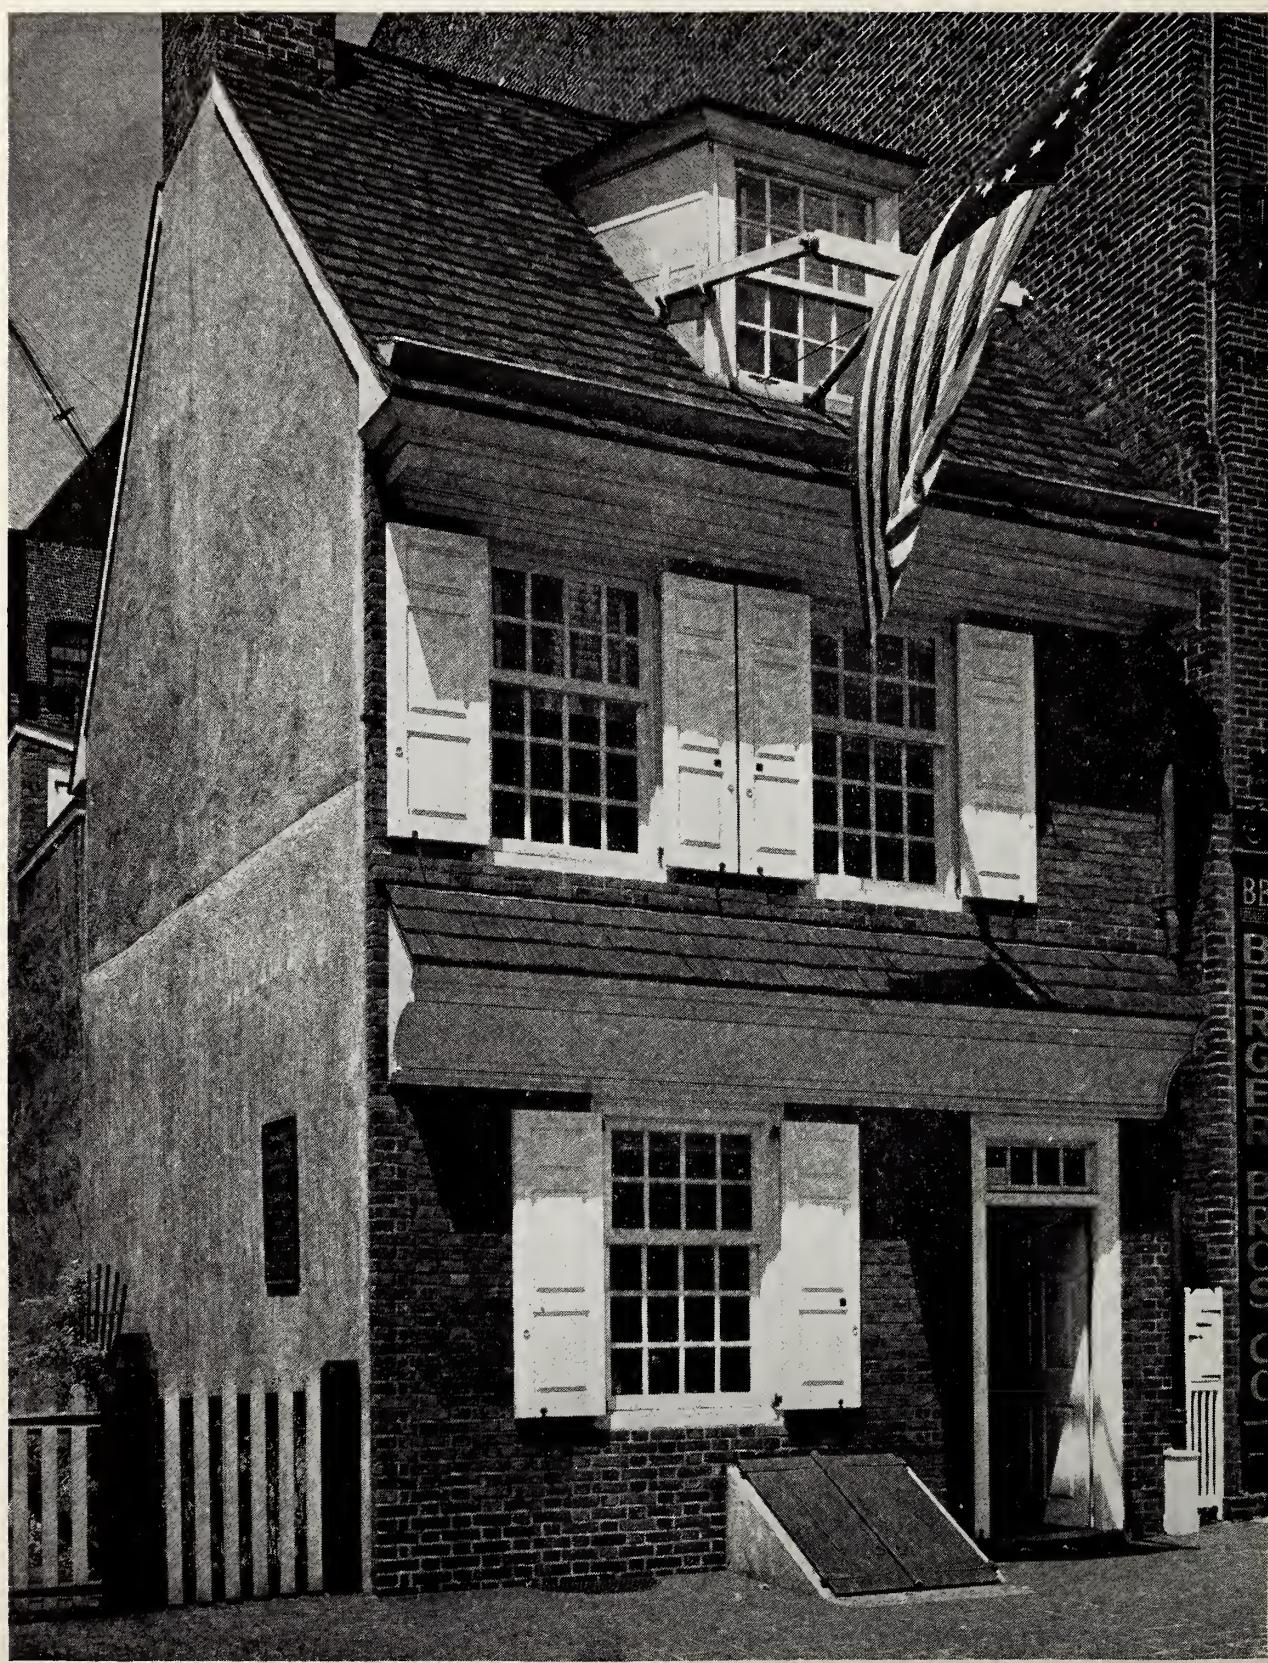

Here's to you—for helping to keep the American ideal untouched by fifth-column infection . . .

Here's to you—for helping to stand guard against all "isms" alien to the rights of man . . .

Here's to you—for helping to serve and comfort those of our land who have dared death on the battlefronts of freedom . . .

Here's to you—for helping to build and preserve the indestructible edifice that is America!

The new "Lifeguard" Body is part of the new Ford "Feel"

Fords feel safe—Fords ARE safe. Ford bodies are "Lifeguard" bodies—heavy-gauge steel bodies. Together with Ford's own 5 cross-member box-section frame you get a structure that's 59% more rigid—and wonderfully quiet to drive!

Take the wheel—try the new Ford "Feel." Ford's "Finger Tip" Steering and Shifting give you positive, effortless control!

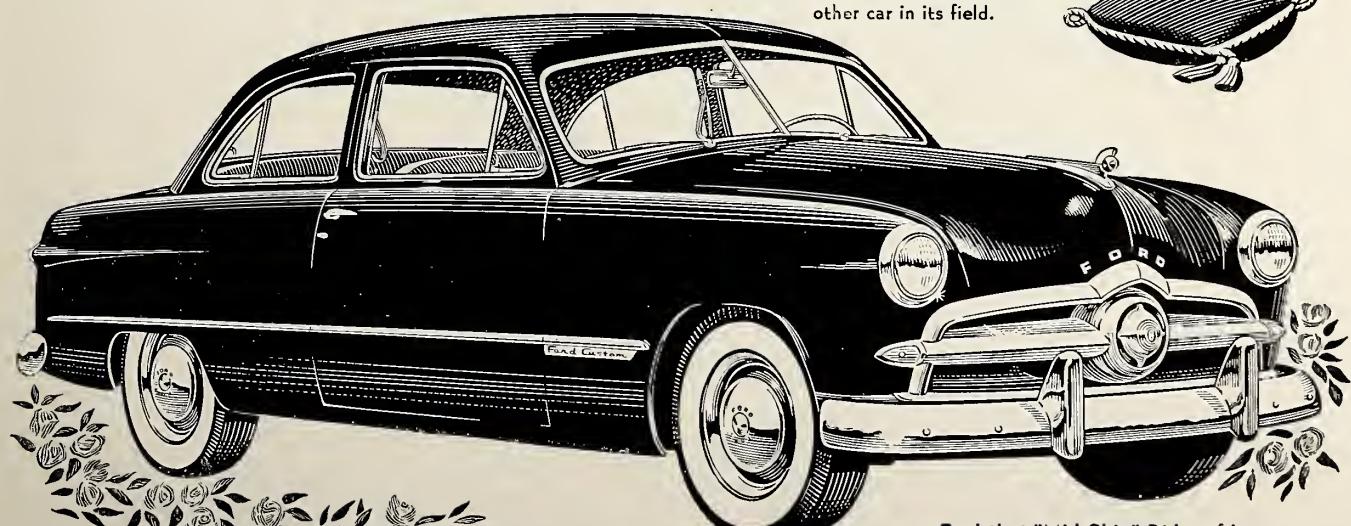

Try the brakes—feel that 35% easier stopping action! Yes, Ford's King-Size "Magic Action" Brakes are brakes you love to touch!

Feel those sofa-soft, sofa-wide seats! More hip and shoulder room, front and rear, than in any other car in its field.

Awarded the Fashion Academy Gold Medal
as the "Fashion Car of the Year"

Feel that "Mid Ship" Ride softly cushioned by new "Hydra-Coil" Springs in front, new "Para-Flex" Springs in rear!

Yes, the new Ford "Feel" adds up to a brand-new kind of driving—with new ease of control, new performance, new roadability, new security. Try it!

Committee, will be in charge and will issue all instructions. No overnight parking of Box Cars or Locomotives will be permitted on the streets of Philadelphia.

(M) All musical units will be judged for prizes while passing the reviewing stand.

NEW LEGION HOME RISING

Stone work on the new $2,000,000 national headquarters building of The American Legion in Indianapolis, Ind., has reached the fourth story and the prospects are excellent that construction will be completed shortly after New Year's Day.

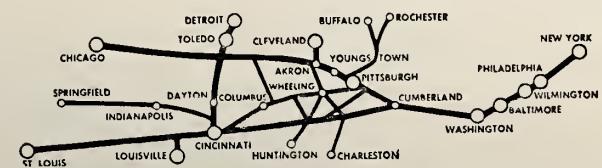

The new national American Legion home will be one of the finest headquarters building housing any organization. It will be 2½ times the size of the present structure.

It is expected that the National Executive Committee will hold its May 1950 meeting in the new building. The fourth floor on which the NEC assembly room will be located, will be air-conditioned.

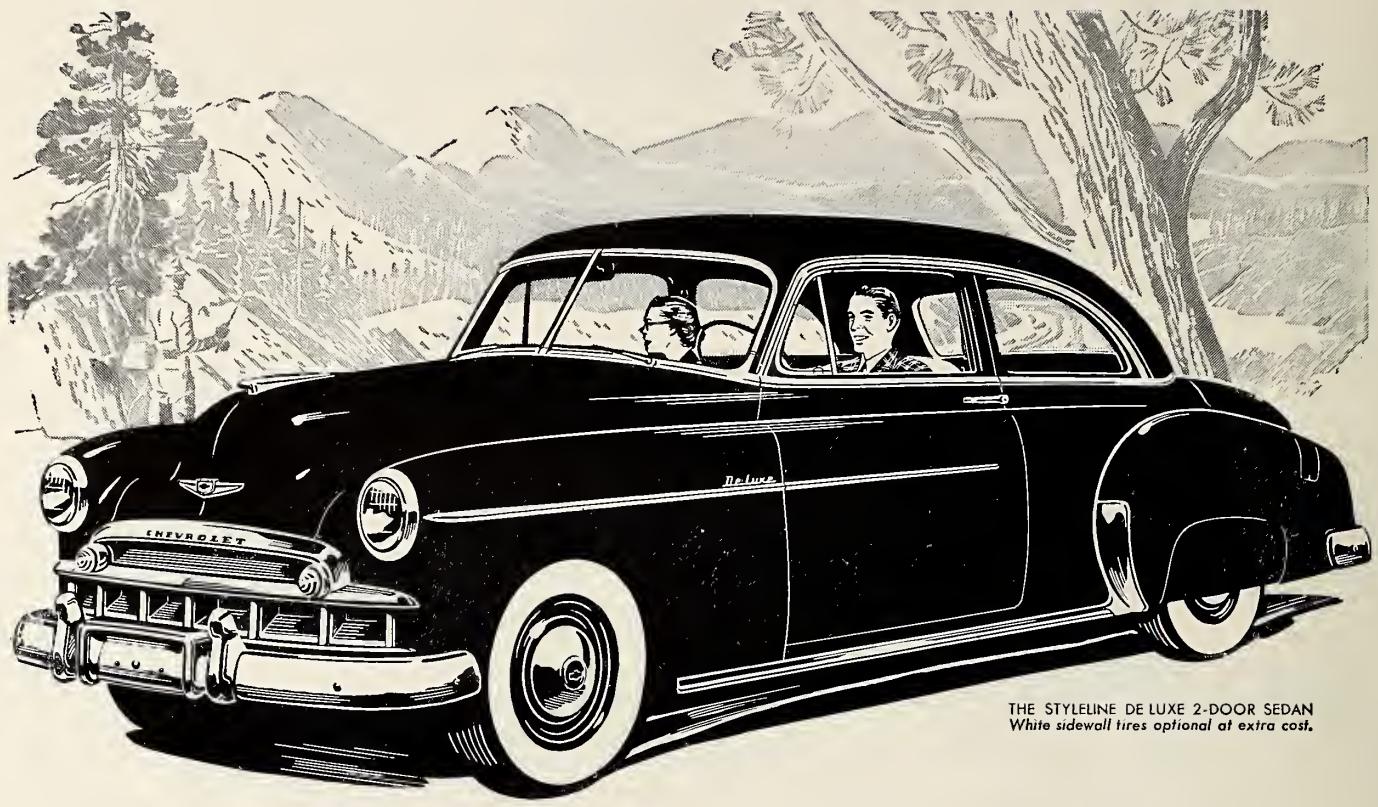

In other features, we believe in keeping right up-to-the-minute—or a little ahead, for we know our patrons like modern travel. But, come Diesel locomotives and streamlined trains, fluorescent lighting and Strata-Domes, our old-fashioned courtesy will never change.

You prefer it that way, we know. The smile that accompanies the information you seek, the friendly assistance of a porter, a conductor's cheery "good morning," the extra effort of your waiter to please—these are attentions you look for on the B&O, and which you shall always receive. Yes, we refuse to modernize our courtesy!

LEGION DOMINATES VET

REHAB

The American Legion today enjoys a substantial margin of leadership in the rehabilitation battle for the veteran at the highest government level.

Today The American Legion has 42.42 percent or 1,715 of the 4,042 representatives of 24 national and 45 state organizations accredited by the Veterans Administration as authorized to prosecute claims for government benefits for veterans, their dependents and beneficiaries.

This is a gain of 20 accredited representatives during 1949 or 1.15 percent. It was made during a year when nearly all other organizations lost ground in this top level field.

The latest VA score sheet shows the following breakdown of representatives accredited to the leading organizations in the prosecution of veterans' claims:

THE AMERICAN LEGION, 1,715 or 42.42 percent of the total, a gain during 1949 of 20.

AMERICAN RED CROSS, 376 or 9.30 percent, a loss of 23.

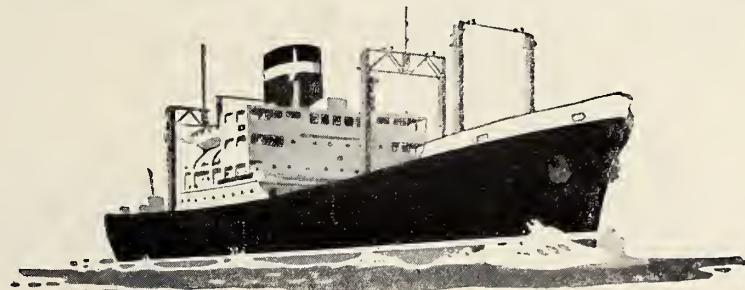

DISABLED AMERICAN VETERANS, 333 or 8.23 percent, a loss of 22.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS, 322 or 7.98 percent, a loss of 29.

AMVETS, 227 or 5.61 percent, a loss of 8.

AMERICAN VETERANS' COMMITTEE, 21 or .05 percent, a gain of 5.

Sixty-three other organizations, 1,048 or 25.95 percent, a gain of 17.

UNITS OF SEAPOWER

FORTY-SEVEN company-owned, modern cargo carriers together with chartered vessels and other operated ships comprise the United States Lines' fleet.

They link the East Coast of the United States with Great Britain, Ireland, Continental Europe, the Far East, Australia and New Zealand.

A Plan of Action!

What Are They?

The American Legion will stage two national drives between now and December 31, 1949 to enroll a record membership for 1950.

These campaigns have been named the MEMBERSHIP CRUSADES of 1950.

The crusades have been designed to dovetail into and to supplement the advance membership programs of the more than 17,300 posts of The American Legion and to provide some national incentives for local efforts.

Why So Named?

The American Legion went back 900 years into medieval history to get the name for its 1950 membership drive.

It did this because in all history there is no better example of organized individual zeal than that displayed by the first young crusaders when they set out in search of the Holy Grail.

That is the kind of zeal which will have to spark the 1950 enrollment campaign if The American Legion is to achieve a new membership record.

Aim of Crusades

The objective of the MEMBERSHIP CRUSADES OF 1950 is to put The American Legion over the top on its national enrollment quota for the ensuing year.

That quota is 3,554,540.

There are nearly 19,000,000 veterans in the United States who are potential members.

They can be enrolled only through crusading zeal.

First Crusade

The first CRUSADE OF 1950 embraces the period from now until Armistice Day, November 11, 1949.

The mission of this first crusade is to re-enroll by that date all 1949 members for 1950.

This crusade starts when the post sends out its first notice to its 1949 members of dues due for 1950. This should be done as early as possible but BEFORE October 20, 1949. It calls for the mailing of second and third statements, if necessary, and an organized campaign by post committees and workers to collect all renewals not promptly sent in by mail.

Second Crusade

The second crusade will start November 12, 1949 and continue until December 31, 1949.

Its objective will be the enrollment of new members.

This crusade will feature a tie-in with Good Neighbor Day on December 7, 1949, when all Legionnaires will be urged to call on their neighbors.

During this crusade, American Legion posts will extend every assistance to veterans of World War II in making applications to the VA for National Service Life Insurance dividend payments. All posts will be provided with these application blanks.

Crusade Weapons

American Legion 1950 membership workers will be known as CRUSADERS.

The crusaders of old wore armor plate. The 1950 crusaders will wear the Blue and the Gold of The American Legion.

The weapons of the first crusaders were lances and swords.

The American Legion crusaders will use the potent arm of publicity.

They will be equipped with revised American Legion promotion material. This will include a new "IT'S A FACT" folder and the pamphlet, "SPECIFIC INVITATION TO VETERANS TO JOIN THE AMERICAN LEGION." They will be furnished speech material. They will be given effective blueprints for post community publicity campaigns.

Personal invitations to eligible veterans by individual workers and teams will be emphasized.

Crusade Planning

A new booklet outlining complete post planning and organization for dovetailing its own enrollment activities into the MEMBERSHIP CRUSADES OF 1950 has already been distributed to all American Legion posts.

The plan calls for the immediate creation of a MEMBERSHIP CRUSADES OF 1950 GENERAL POST COMMITTEE.

"Welcome to Philadelphia – glad you could come!"

"We think that you'll have a nice time while you're here. Seems as though a lot of folks, important to this country's history, just naturally come to Philadelphia, the Cradle of Liberty.

"However, the city has other claims to fame, besides its historical record. For instance, it's the home town of the Reading Railroad.

"Now, you and The Reading have a lot in common—you, as representatives of the nation's veterans; and The Reading, representing the nation's railroads. We're both working to keep America great—and planning to make it even greater, if possible."

Metal Chevron

A metal chevron suitable for attachment to the staff of a standard will be awarded to every American Legion post which by November 11, 1949, equals or exceeds in advance 1950 enrollments its entire membership for 1949. The metal chevrons will be available through department headquarters.

Honor Ribbon

The honor ribbon will be awarded to posts which in their 1950 enrollments, reach or exceed their entire 1949 membership by December 31, 1949. The Honor Ribbon will be available through department headquarters.

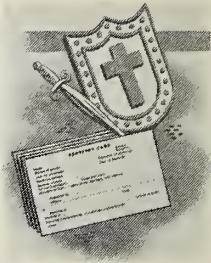

Pershing Award

The GENERAL JOHN J. PERSHING HONOR AWARD will be presented to that department of The American Legion which will have the greatest percentage of its posts in the 1950 Honor Ribbon class by December 31, 1949. A miniature of this award will become the permanent possession of the commander of the winning department.

Citations

A SPECIAL CERTIFICATE OF MOST DISTINGUISHED SERVICE will be awarded by National Headquarters of The American Legion to every post which in its 1950 advance membership equals or exceeds by November 11, 1949 its entire 1949 enrollment.

Posts that accomplish by November 30, 1949 an advance 1950 enrollment which equals or exceeds their previous 4-year average membership will be awarded the DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CITATION.

Posts that do this by December 31, 1949 will get the MERITORIOUS SERVICE CITATION.

1950 QUOTA:

3,554,540

The national 1950 membership quota for the 58 departments of The American Legion, embracing more than 17,329 posts, has been set at 3,554,540 enrollments. This is the same as the 1949 quota.

In announcing the 1950 quota, National Adjutant Henry H. Dudley explained it represented a freeze of the 1949 figure because the Federal Bureau of Census has issued no new report on the shift of the veteran population in the United States since November 25, 1947.

Under the 1950 quota, the Department of New York again got the biggest membership assignment in The American Legion. Its enrollment quota was fixed at 356,815 members for the ensuing year. Pennsylvania's quota is 290,718, second largest. Other department quotas include Illinois 235,860; California 204,810; Ohio 190,798; Texas 160,198; Michigan 143,654; Massachusetts 135,954; New Jersey 105,962 and Indiana 105,097.

LEGION JUNIOR SERIES ON

While The American Legion is meeting in its 31st annual national convention in Philadelphia, Pa., another event of great importance to a million sandlot youngsters of America is taking place in Omaha, Nebraska.

The annual Junior World's Series, climax of the 1949 American Legion Junior Baseball Program, greatest in its history, is being held in Omaha to decide the national championship. Four teams, all of them sectional title holders, are crossing bats in the Nebraska city, August 31 to September 4. They are the survivors of a field of 16,000 teams which started the 1949 season on June 30. Last year the national title was won by Trenton, N. J.

NEW LEGION PROGRAM HAILED

Business and civic leaders throughout the nation have hailed with enthusiasm National Commander Perry Brown's announcement of the new national American Legion program of community economic development.

Briefly, the plan calls for the 17,329 posts of The American Legion to serve as spark plugs in organizing their communities to solve their own economic problems through their own efforts and resources by exploiting untapped local opportunities. American Legion posts are to start the ball rolling by sponsoring public mass meetings or "town hall" sessions at which community action teams are to be organized. Unfilled local needs and wants are to be located through scientific consumer and family surveys.

The objective of the new program is to create new business enterprises, and new jobs and new housing all through organized self-help.

Paul H. Hoffman, ECA Administrator, said:

"The program has, in my opinion, rich potentialities. If the local posts carry it out energetically, a real contribution can be made to the maintenance of prosperity in our country."

U.S. Senator Ralph E. Flanders, Republican of Vermont, said:

"It seems to me that The American Legion has embarked on a very important undertaking. Certainly the local approach provided by these community economic surveys is an ideal method of attempting to solve the problem."

Other favorable comments were made by John D. Biggers, president of the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company; Walter D. Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing Company; Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board, General Electric and Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post.
